Simply a weish rabbit,

SUFFRAGE.

Now that the election is over in Kentucky and the heat of the political contest has cleared away, it occurs to us to be just and proper to make some comments on past elections and suggestions for the future. We do not pose as a moralist, nor as one skilled in ethics, but there are some things practiced in connection with our elections and which is being more indulged in year by year, and that is the awful thing of buying and selling human suffrage. To us it seems that there is no practice that is more detrimental to organized society and which is growing more enormous every year than this dangerous and malignant and cankerous practice of bribery in elections.

We may congratulate ourselves in Kentucky that there is shown a strong tendency toward fair elections, and the people have come out boldly against corrupt practices in politics and against machine methods and party bosses, but there remains yet this great evil to our electorate system that here last Sunday by Rev. J. B. must be eradicated. The thing of Flinchum. The hour may be disdreamily remote when these hopes can be realized, but we here call upon all persons to whom this message may come and ask that the appeal be repeated and soun ded again; whether you occupy the pulpit, or plead before the bar, or weild the silent form of the pen, or follow the charming pursuits of commerce; whether of high or humble station in life, let it be your present aim to free and growing evil of purchasing Wednesday. and selling human suffrage. The Chinese and Grapes. Did you ever hear how the Chinese keep grapes fresh? The method is unique and is simple enough for anybody to try it. A circular piece is cut out of a ripe pumpkin, making an opening just large enough to admit the hand. The interior is then nicely cleaned out, the grapes are put in, and the circular piece is replaced and pressed in firmly. If the pumpkin be kept where it is cool the grapes will remain fresh for an almost indefinite period. It is said that by this method the Chinese have them all the year around .-Exchange.

A Narrow Escape. G. W. Cloyd, a merchant, of Plunk Mo., had a narrow escape four years ago, when he ran a jimson bur into his thumb. He says: "The doctor wanted to amputate it but I would not consent. I bought a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve and that cured the dangerous wound." 25e at Jackson Drug

KILL THE COUCH

OR MONEY REFUNDED.

The eels form the suborder of the apoda, or footless fish, so called from the absence of ventral fins. These fish assume a form very similar to the serpents. Although on a hasty examination they seem to be devoid of scales, yet when the skin is dried very minute scales may be seen through the semitransparent outer skin and may be easily detached by carefully separating the two skins. Eels inhabit muddy ponds and rivers and are common in many canals. They are susceptible to cold and constantly descend the rivers to deposit their spawn in the sea, after which the young when hatched work their way up the rivers, thereby precisely reversing the habits of the salmon. They are capable of living out of water for a long time and often make voluntary land excursions, either for the purpose of avoiding an insurmountable fall or in search of frogs or worms, on which they feed. In the winter, while they are lying torpid in the mud, multitudes are taken by eel spears-many pronged instruments. whose prongs are feathered with recurved barbs, which, when pushed into the mud, entangle the eels and effectually prevent their escape. My Best Friend.

Before the magistrate the defendant was charged with being drunk and incapable. He was a stranger in the district, but he was most acutely indignant that he should be suffering the humiliation of his present position "The constable seems very certain about everything connected with my case," he sneered, "but there is one weak point in his evidence. Why"impressively-"does he not call his fellow officer to corroborate what he says?" His worship turned an inquiring look upon the policeman, who vainly endeavored to conceal an expansive smile behind an ample but for that purpose all too small hand. "There's only one constable stationed in the village, sir," said the officer. "But I saw two last night!" indignantly asserted the defendant. "Exactly!" grinned the policeman. "That's just the charge against you!"

He Could Not Speak.

Pierre Nicole, one of the most distinguished scholars of the Port Royalrope, was noted for his unreadiness in oral argument. It is said that once when an opponent, having got the better of him in an argument, had left the room Nicole called out to him from the landing as he was near the street door: "Come back, come back! I have a reply ready for you!"

The anecdote will serve to introduce one about Thackeray, who was destitute of the ability to think and speak on his legs. He once stood as a candidate for the representation of Oxford tn the house of commons. On the hustings he broke down and could hardly speak a sentence. "If I could," he said to himself, "only go into the mayor's parlor for five minutes I could write this out easily."

Wonderful Eczema Cure. "Our little boy had eczema for five years," writes N. A. Adams, Henrietta, Pa. "Two of our home doctors said the case was hopeless, his lungs being effected. We then employed other doctors, but no benefit resulted. By chance we read about Electric Bitters; bought a bottle and soon noticed improvement. We continued this medicine until several bottles were used when our hoz was completely cured.'
